DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. In view of Applicant's amendments, restriction is required.
2. The original claims filed 30 June 2003 were not patentably distinct, so a restriction requirement was not proper.
3. Originally filed claims 1, 14, 23, 35, 44 and 54 relate to sending hot key signals informing of available content during an advertisement or related to an advertisement.
4. Originally filed claims 9, 18, 29, 39, 49, and 58 relate to informing a user of available content via an electronic program guide or related to an electronic program guide.
5. The two groups as listed above are not patentably distinct because the hot key signals displayed "during" or "related to" an advertisement as in the first grouping could be displayed by an electronic program guide, i.e. "via" or "related to" the electronic program guide as in the second grouping. Therefore the two groups are not patentably distinct, and could be part of the same embodiment. See the rejections in the Office Action dated 17 October 2007.
6. The amended claims filed 17 March 2008 are patentably distinct according to the groups as listed above.
7. Amended claims in the first group require that the available content has subject matter related to subject matter of the advertisement being viewed by the user.

8. Amended claims in the second group require that the available content has subject matter that is related to subject matter of the portion of the electronic program guide being viewed by the user.

9. The claims in the amended groups are patentably distinct because the claims are drawn to separate embodiments based on the relation of the subject matter of the viewed content to the subject matter of the available content.

Election/Restrictions

10. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species:

- a. Group 1: claims 1-8, 14-17, 23-28, 35-38, 44-48, and 54-57, drawn to Figures 1A-D.
- b. Group 2: claims 9-13, 18-22, 29-34, 39-43, 49-53, and 58-62, drawn to Figures 2A-D.

11. The species are independent or distinct because claims to the different species recite the mutually exclusive characteristics of such species. In addition, these species are not obvious variants of each other based on the current record.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, no claims are generic.

There is an examination and search burden for these patentably distinct species due to their mutually exclusive characteristics. The species require a different field of search (e.g., searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries); and/or the prior art applicable to one species would not likely be applicable to another species; and/or the species are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

The election of the species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the election of species requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected species.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the species unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other species.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141.
